

PELLETRET (PELTRET)

1. SIMON PELLETRET (PELTRET) & PERRINE BOURG.

Explanatory Note

S.A. White

François Gautrot, Guillaume Trahan, Jean Blanchard, Simon Pelletret, and Michel Boudrot are all named in the list of expropriations in 1705 as the owners of lots "adjoining the side of the old fort." Four out of five of these persons were among the first colonists at Port-Royal, Trahan for example having arrived aboard the Saint-Jehan in 1636 and Boudrot having been syndic at Port-Royal in 1639. By 1705, all four had long since been dead, and it must be supposed that at the time of the expropriations their heirs were the actual owners of these lots. It may be presumed that it was the same with Simon Pelletret. Given that no male bears this name in any of the Acadian censuses beginning in 1671, it would appear that this Simon must have been Perrine Bourg's first husband. Simon Pelletret would thus have received, along with François Gautrot, Guillaume Trahan, Jean Blanchard, and Michel Boudrot, one of the first grants at Port-Royal, close to the fort.

Biographical Note

- 2 Dec 1705: Expropriation of a lot, adjoining the side of the old fort, and belonging to Simon Pelletret, for the extension of the fort at Port-Royal. As Simon Pelletret apparently had been dead for many years in 1705, one must suppose that his heirs were then the actual owners of this land.
